Q: Multithreading Performance of Android 2.3.x/2.3.7 I am going to use some multithreaded library to take advantage of multiple cores in Android device. Which library is best to use? Are there any performance penalty on using multithreading on Android 2.3.7/2.3.3-2.3.8? A: Unless you are doing some really peculiar stuff, you are not going to need to use any sort of threading because your application will not even execute for 1/10th of a second in an optimal device. The only thing you can do is to ensure that the CPU is busy doing other things so you don't bog the system down in the first place, and on newer devices, the threaded thing will happen anyways, because the device will just split the work into multiple processes (see long-running tasks)
